Alaska Target 2010 Fund¹

Investment Objective

The Fund is designed to gradually invest more conservatively, with an emphasis on capital preservation, as the year 2010 approaches.

How The Fund Works

Currently, the Fund buys and holds a mix of domestic and international stocks (including small cap stocks), investment-grade bonds, federally guaranteed mortgages and money market instruments. The Fund gradually shifts to a more conservative asset mix with an emphasis on capital preservation.

Investor Profile

The Fund is appropriate for those investors planning to retire or begin withdrawing money for other reasons around the year 2010 and/or investors with a moderate tolerance for risk.

Fund Benchmark

Returns for the Alaska Target Date Funds cannot be directly compared to any one index. The Custom Target Benchmark consists of each underlying fund's benchmark, weighted according to the "strategic" weight as set forth in the current guidelines, based on historical rates of return of certain benchmarks as proxies for the asset classes represented in each fund. The specific benchmarks include (and for the current period are): Standard & Poor's 500[®] Index (28.00%), Russell 2500[®] Index (0.50%), MSCI Europe, Australasia, Far East (EAFE) Index (0%), Barclays Capital Government/Credit Bond Index (42.75%), Barclays Capital Mortgage Index (4.75%), and 90-day Treasury bills (24.00%).² Changing on a quarterly basis, the figures represent the asset mix in each fund to approach a predetermined allocation at each target date. The overall asset mix becomes more conservative (i.e., more heavily weighted with fixed-income and money market securities) as the target date approaches.

Fund Management

T. Rowe Price manages the Fund. T. Rowe Price, founded in 1937, is a leading investment manager in the United States. The T. Rowe Price family of companies has over $269 billion in assets under management.

The Fund is designed to provide investors with a simple way to hold a diversified portfolio, which gradually becomes more conservative as the year 2010 draws near. Professional money managers shift assets gradually between asset classes to take advantage of market conditions.

Since these classes respond to different market forces, one class doing poorly may be offset by another class doing well. The Fund's assets are spread across and within asset classes.

As with any investment, the market value of the fund may go up and down over the short term. Investors should be prepared to accept year-to-year changes in returns, including declining values. Historical returns, however, demonstrate that a long-term investment across varying asset classes may provide substantial protection against below-average returns in one class while potentially providing income and capital appreciation from classes not often included in a retirement portfolio.

¹The Fund is not a mutual fund. It is a common trust fund established by the T. Rowe Price Trust Company under Maryland banking law, and its units are exempt from registration under the Securities Act of 1933. Investments in the Fund are not deposits or obligations of, or guaranteed by, the US government or its agencies or the T. Rowe Price Trust Company and are subject to investment risks, including possible loss of principal.

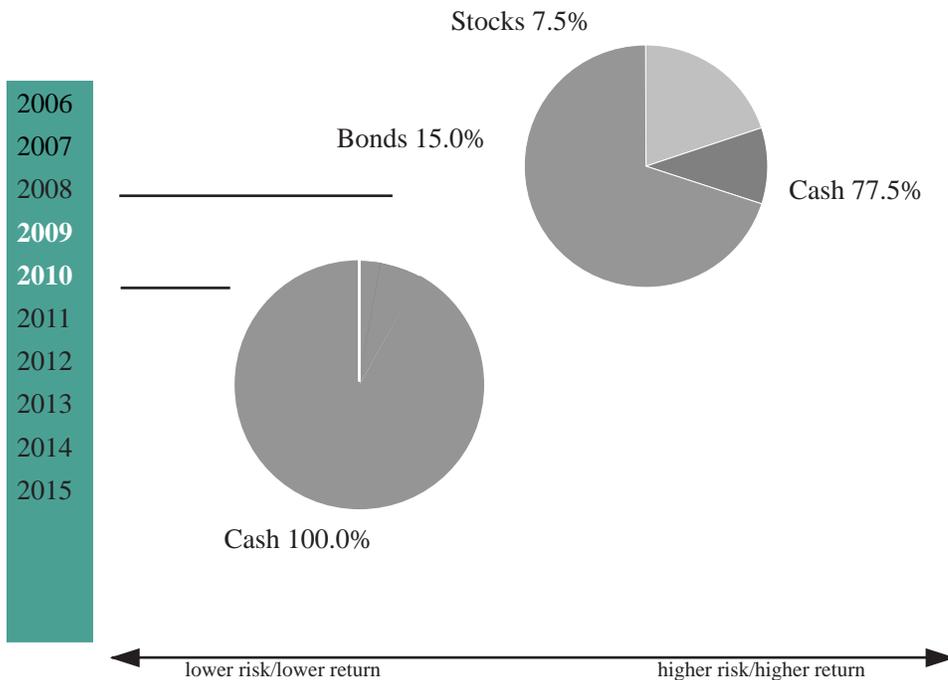

²US Treasury securities are guaranteed as to the timely payment of principal and interest if held to maturity. Fund shares are neither issued nor guaranteed by the US Government.
