

Michael Carey

Michael Carey was born and raised in Fairbanks. He attended Fairbanks public school before going on to Ithaca College (New York) where he received a B.A. in History. He did graduate work in the History Department at Duke University (North Carolina) before turning to journalism. Michael was an editorial writer and columnist for the Anchorage Daily News for 16 years and the editorial page editor for 10 years. After taking early retirement, he remained with the News as a columnist. He has had a second career in broadcasting with Alaska Public Television as the host of "Alaska Edition" and the election show "Running." He has edited numerous books, and his work has appeared in a number of anthologies as well as in The New York Times, The Los Angeles Times, The Hartford Courant, The San Francisco Chronicle, The Houston Chronicle, The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists and Fur Fish Game Magazine. He lives in Anchorage with his wife Margaret Brown Carey.